

Hello annotator :)

Thank you for helping me with my project.

For annotating sentences, you will use an online tool called Doccano.

To go to the tool:

1. Open Chrome or Firefox
2. Go to <http://textdata.nl/doccano> or if this doesn't work go to: <http://textdata.nl:8000/login>
3. Log in with your first name (with a capital letter) as the username
4. The password is : XXXXXXXXXX (all small letters)

You are now logged in. You should see only one project that you can click on (that also has your name). If you see more or less than 1, please let me know (a.r.dirkson@liacs.leidenuniv.nl).

Once you click on the project, you will start annotating. The screen should look like this:

To annotate a sentence, please choose one (and only one) of the options at the top.

Please choose the one which to you best represents how grammatically correct the sentence is (i.e. its grammaticality). Please ignore strange spacing (because of de- and re-tokenization).

Grammaticality is also defined as: In how far it conforms to the rules of grammar.

When you have chosen an option, click on the arrow at the bottom (the one with the green square) to go to the next sentence. You can also use the → arrow on your keyboard.

At the top you can see how far you are and how many you still have to do.

Want to take a break?

No problem. You can leave the screen and log in again next time.

However, it will automatically take you to the first sentence again every time you log in so to prevent this happening:

Copy the link in your browser bar before you exit (and save it somewhere). Pasting this into your bar should bring you back to where you were.

If you forget, you will need to scroll through all the sentences that you have already done to get to where you were.
